b. Personal Data Protection Act

N O T I C E

Personal Data Protection Act

While knowing one's blood type may not have a large effect on day-to-day life, that knowledge could save lives, even one's own. When asked, many people do not know their blood type, but it is very important in a medical emergency.

When in an emergency situation away from a hospital, instead of using valuable O-type blood or utilizing precious time testing one's blood type, emergency personnel can match blood types exactly. It's really important (to know your blood type), especially in emergency situations; If you're bleeding after a trauma, or involve in an accident, emergency personnel might need to help you with an immediate transfusion. If you have a card in your wallet or stated in your ID card, it can help with what blood to look for without delay.

Please note that this information will be kept P&C and only for internal use of Group Security & investigation Department.

I acknowledge that I was briefed and understood the Group Security & Investigation Department policy requirement.

☑ I consent to the processing and use by AmBank Group Security & investigation Department of my personal information for the purpose as stated above.

My Blood Type: B+

☐ I do not consent to the processing and use by AmBank Group Security & investigation Department of my personal information for the purpose as stated above.
